I. Army.

A. SUPREME MILITARY AUTHORITY AND ITS ORGANS

The President of the Republic is the supreme military authority.

The Ministry of War upon which devolves the general direction of the army, ensures the execution of orders given by the President of the Republic in the exercise of supreme authority.

I. MINISTRY OF WAR.

The Ministry of War consists of the following departments:

(a) War Office Secretariat, which is under the direct control of the Minister.

The War Office Secretariat works in co-operation with the Army Staff, the Polytechnic School, the military judicial organs, the military statistical service, etc. The War Office Secretariat prepares the annual military budget estimates for submission to the National Assembly.

(b) The Supreme Army Command, which is directly under the Ministry of War.

The Supreme Army Command consists of:

A general officer, who is the commander-in-chief of the army and is appointed by the Ministry of War; a secretary, second in command of the army, with the rank of colonel or general; a director of military administration and the officers commanding the infantry, the artillery and the engineers.

The Supreme Army Command deals more particularly with questions connected with recruiting, re-engagements, military training, promotion, etc.

(c) The Army Intendance Department.

(d) The General Inspectorate of Railways which is under the Ministry of War and the Ministry of Public Works and Commerce.
2. General Staff.

The General Staff is an auxiliary organ of the Army Command. It consists of all generals of division and generals of brigade in the army; it is under the direct authority of the Ministry of War.

The General Staff is divided into active and reserve lists.

Generals of brigades pass from the active list to the reserve list at the age of 62 and generals of divisions at the age of 60.

Certain generals nominated by the Ministry of War form an Advisory War Committee.

3. Army Staff.

The Army Staff is an auxiliary organ of the War Secretariat, to which it is attached. It is responsible for the examination of all technical questions relating to the Guatemalan army.

The Advisory War Council is a supreme council known as the "Junta consultiva de guerra", presided over by the Minister of War, its purpose being to assist the Minister and to pass resolutions on questions of essential importance to the Army.

The following are members of the Council: the Chief of the Army Staff, the chiefs of the auxiliary technical bodies, and two generals; the Under-Secretary of State for War acts as secretary. The members of the Council are appointed by the Government.

5. Army Inspectorates.

The Minister of War acts as Inspector-General of the Army.

There are at present six Army Inspectorates corresponding to six zones: Central, North-Eastern, South-Eastern, Southern, Western and Northern. The Inspectors periodically visit the zones allotted to them, satisfy themselves as to the condition of the troops, their organisation and training, and render detailed reports to the War Office.

B. Subdivision and Composition of the Army

The Guatemalan Army is divided into an active army and a reserve. The active army is subdivided into: I. Regular troops, i.e., troops which are always under arms; II. Mobilisable troops, including men who have received military training; III. Territorial troops, including men who have not yet received regular military training.

The Reserve is subdivided into: I. Mobile reserve, which has received military training, and II. Territorial reserve, which has not received military training.
The active army consists of men from 18 to 30 inclusive. The men of the active army may be either with the colours or released on furlough till called upon. Those in the former category provide garrison troops in time of peace; those in the latter are only liable to be mobilised in time of war; they may also be called upon in case of need for the purpose of re-establishing order in the country. The reserve army consists of men from 31 to 50 inclusive, who are liable to be mobilised under the same circumstances as men on furlough.

Men on furlough are organised in battalions in each department. The reserve is organised in the same manner.

Military areas.

The territory of the Republic of Guatemala is divided into a number of army commands, and these again are subdivided into local commands. There is an army command for each department. The army commands are inspected yearly by military inspectors attached to the department of the Inspector-General of the Army, which is itself part of the Ministry of War.

C. ARMS AND SERVICES

There are two infantry corps consisting of:

14 companies and 1 section of infantry;

4 groups of artillery, including:
  4 heavy mountain batteries;
  2 light mountain batteries;
  2 field batteries;
6 machine-gun companies and 1 machine-gun section;

1 guard-of-honour battalion;

5 sections of employees and workmen;

1 national aviation school.

Air Service.

The Air Service comprises the Army Flying Service and the Civil Flying Service.

The Army Flying Service is represented by the Military Flying Corps, which is an integral part of the army and is subject to the military laws of the Republic; its personnel is regarded as military personnel performing active service.

The Civil Flying Service is under the Ministry of Commerce and Public Works. It is subject to the army penal legislation as regards national security; in time of war its whole material and personnel are at the disposal of the army.

The Air Service command is directly under the Ministry of War. The Commander of the Air Service exercises authority over the whole personnel of the Army Flying Corps; he also supervises the whole Civil Flying Service in matters relating to national security.

The Military Flying Corps came into existence on July 1st, 1929. Its commander has the rank of Divisional-General.
Military Sappers Corps.

The Military Sappers Corps, created in September 1930, comprises all Guatemalans who are liable to whole or part-time service as sappers in the army; they are organised in companies, from which the engineers of the army are drawn. The sappers belong to the regular territorial force or to the territorial reserve, according to age. In peace time they are employed for the construction and maintenance of roads and for public works under the direction of the Ministry concerned. In war time they are utilised by the army. The duration of service of the sappers in peace time is two years, divided into several periods; they may be called up again only in case of war or of public calamity.

D. RECRUITING SYSTEM

The regular troops consist of:

I. The annual contingent called up in January and July for compulsory service, which is for a period of one year for infantry and cavalry and two years for artillery and engineers. After completing their term of active service the men form part of the mobilisable troops.

II. Volunteers. Volunteers are young men under 18 years of age who offer themselves for service, with the authorisation of their parents or guardians. Volunteers also include members of the Reserve who desire to perform active service.

III. Re-enlisted troops. Re-enlisted troops consist of troops who after having concluded their regular service, desire to remain with the colours for one or more terms of service.

Mobilisable troops consist of men who have completed their term of service with the colours.

Such men, on reaching the age of 30, form part of the Reserve and remain in the position of mobile reserve.

Territorial troops consist of men under 30 years of age who have not received any military training and are not included as regular troops.

Territorial troops also include students of educational establishments who are required to serve with the colours when they have completed their studies. The term of service of such students is six months, provided that they furnish proof of having received training as recruits in their own particular educational establishment.

The Mobile Reserve consists of men from 30 to 50 years of age belonging to the mobilisable troops who have served with the colours.

The Territorial Reserve consists of men from 30 to 50 years of age who have not served with the colours.

Private soldiers, corporals and sergeants 50 years of age obtain their final discharge unless they re-enlist.

On January 1st in each year all private soldiers who have reached the age of 30 during the previous year become members of the Reserve.

Exemption.

The law provides in a number of cases for the exemption of men supporting a family and members of certain professions.
Cadres.

Commissions are granted to cadets who have passed through the Polytechnic School or the Military Aviation School and to soldiers who have passed an examination for the rank of second lieutenant.

Cadets who have passed through the Polytechnic School are distributed among the various corps and services as military instructors, or are given other military employment.

To be promoted corporal, a soldier must have served for at least six months and have passed an examination. To be promoted second- or first-class sergeant, a soldier must have served for 6 months as a corporal, and to be promoted first-class sergeant must have served as second-class sergeant for one year. Promotions to the rank of second lieutenant are made by seniority after examination.

Military Training.

Military training is given at the Polytechnic School, the Military Aviation School and the various officers' schools (Military Academies, Advanced School, and schools for corporals and sergeants.). Men in the active army are trained in the garrisons. Men on furlough go through a course of training twice a year in their respective departments. Each period of training lasts sixteen days.

In 1928 the number of students at the Military Academies and schools for corporals and sergeants was as follows: 859 officers, 1,369 non-commissioned officers and men.

There is also a flying-school attached to the Ministry of National Defence divided into two sections, for cadet pilots and mechanics respectively.

Musketry Courses.

In 1925, 19,352 men attended these courses.
